

ALBAMAR

Estate Bottled / Casablanca Valley / Chile

Wines from the cool climate Casablanca Valley

Owned and produced by William Cole and his Chilean family, Albamar wines come from the prestigious Casablanca Valley—often called “Chile’s Burgundy.” The name Albamar pays homage to the valley’s foggy sunrise (alba means sunrise) and the cooling breezes of the ocean (mar means ocean). The unique coastal location of the vineyard provides a long, warm growing season with cool nights, resulting in wines with refreshing acidity. The grapes are 100% estate grown and picked by hand. Albamar wines represent excellent values.

Albamar Sauvignon Blanc 2014

The Sauvignon Blanc has excellent fresh fruit character and flavors of Meyer lemon and crisp apple. It is dry, food friendly and will pair well with grilled foods and fresh seafood.

*A Sunset Magazine Gold Medal winner.

12.0 % alcohol pH: 3.30 Unoaked

Albamar Chardonnay 2013

Crisp, sleek and focused, this is a refreshing, medium-weight wine with flavors of pear and peach and a touch of minerality. It will pair well with creamy pasta dishes, buttery seafood, pork or baked chicken.

13.0 % alcohol pH: 3.22 Unoaked

Albamar Pinot Noir 2012

Medium-bodied, with flavors of cherry and ripe raspberry, with hints of cinnamon and spice. A versatile, food-friendly Pinot Noir with a touch of French oak and a classic, silky finish.

13.9 % alcohol pH: 3.64 4 months in used French oak
